

BEST WORKING CONDITIONS

Using Best Working Conditions stimulates group members to think about the group and their own roles and behaviors in it. In essence, Best Working Conditions is a group contract insofar as it covers some of the general rules of operation and presumes specific expectations for all group members and the leaders.

OUTCOMES

- We will do our best work here.
- We will support each others' work.
- We will get our individual needs met.

DIRECTIONS:

THINK → In order to do your best work here, what 3 or 4 individual needs do you have?
(ex: one person talking at a time)

WRITE → List

1.	_____
2.	_____
3.	_____

PAIR → Talk to the person next to you about your needs; keep, add to, or edit your list.

SHARE → Round robin: share your individual needs.

CREATE → a list for the working group on a chart, paper or tent.
